पदभरनमितोर्वीवेगविक्षिप्तसिन्धु
प्रलयघनसमानैराननैर्मुक्त्तनादम् ।
भुजवनपवनास्तप्रस्थबन्धं गिरीणां
भवतु भयहरं वस्ताण्डवं हेरुकस्य ॥

The ocean is flung to the sky by the force of the earth
tilting beneath the weight of his footsteps
And a great roar is released from his mass of faces arrayed like the dark clouds at the end of time
And the wind created by the forest of his arms shakes the very mountains from their roots —
May this wild dance of Heruka take away all of your fear!

When the teachings point toward the moon, the wise student does not focus upon the finger of the teacher. The words of the teachings, indeed, are no more than symbolic indicators of that which may be realised in the vast space of the sky beyond the confines of concepts.

Homage to the Vajra Youth, Greater than Great!
